A small country, like ours, has its benefits. Nowhere is very far from somewhere else.

It also has its problems.

It's crowded with people who like to travel by car, which means road congestion and city parking problems.

The new motorways and city car parking schemes are some years away, and when they come we'll still have the same problems.

And, anyway, our small country roads will still be small country roads.

What this country needs is a car that makes the most of every inch of road and parking space.

The Mini is such a car.

The Mini carries 4 people in genuine comfort in a body just over 10 feet long, and 4.75 feet wide.

The Mini, with a very small turning circle, can park in places most cars can't look at.

The Mini has marvellous road holding, safe cornering and instant controllability.

The Mini now comes in a stylish new body shape called Clubman. With new fascia, new seating and more comfort all round.

The Mini costs from £641,* and does 41.7 miles to a gallon of 3 Star petrol.†

If you were to build a car for this small country, would you build it any different?

Drop in at your Mini showroom for a test drive.

It can't be far.

A little goes a long way.
